Needles

The needles we use are surgical stainless steel and are sterilized. We are constantly inventing better needle configurations to help Tattoo Artists create art and save time. Each Tattoo Needle is hand crafted and inspected.

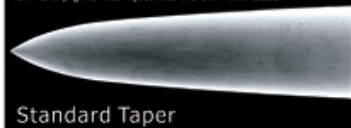

Long tapered needles are mainly used for liner and shader type needles

Long Taper

We use Standard Tapered Needles for our Round Shader Needles. It creates a larger puncture in the skin, allowing for more pigment to inject into the skin with ease.

Tattoo Needles

Round Liners are tightly grouped and the needles are long tapered.

TIP: Instead of using a 1201RLB for fine detail, try using a bugpin 3 round liner (1003RLB). It will hold more ink and still create fine lines.

Semi-Tight Round Liners are configured in a way that the soldering is between a liner and a shader. Semi-tight liners create slightly thicker lines but also cause less trauma to the skin.

Round shaders are made with standard tapered needles. These Needles are used for packing color.

Weaved Magnum Needles

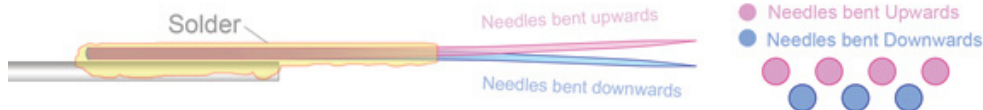

Also available in Bugpin #8, #10 Gauge Needles

Weaved Magnums, also known as Single Stack Magnums, are a single row of long tapered needles that are weaved to create small gaps between each needle. Magnums are for shading and packing-in color.

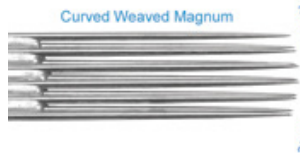

TIP: 10 Gauge bugpin Magnums are best used for delicate shading such as portraits. Bugpin needles will allow you to go over the same area of the skin more than once with less damage to the skin.

Aluminator Series Tattoo Machines are light weight, hard hitting, and dependable. The special design allows it to run at a lower voltage compared to standard iron or steel framed machines. With our low voltage and high quality copper coils, the machine will run smoothly without the coils overheating. All Aluminator Machines include an Extra Spring that will allow you to adjust your machine to a liner or a shader.

WWT IRONS WORLDWIDE TATTOO IRON MACHINES

WorldWide Iron Tattoo Machines are made like traditional machines with a dense iron. The machine is much heavier and can handle day to day use and vibrations. When iron is exposed to a magnetic field, the atoms align their electrons with the flow of the magnetic field. The Frame itself then is magnetized as well, thus creating a stronger hitting machine.

What is the difference between 8 and 10 Wrap Coils?

There are normally 2 types of coils for Tattoo Machines. Each coil consists of copper wires that wrap around a metal core 8 or 10 times. 10 Wrap coils are stronger than 8 wrap coils.

TIP: 10 wrap coil machines hit harder and using it as a liner may damage the skin.

Transfer Solution

Atsui Transfer Paper

ATSUI20 (20 Sheets) $8
ATSUI100 (100 Sheets) $25

Atsui Carbon Transfer Paper can be hand drawn or used with a Transfer Machine.

An easy way to create carbon transfers by hand.

Place a copy of your artwork on top of the carbon sided paper. (regular paper works best) Simply trace on top of that image with a pen.

Check the back of your paper, and you will see the carbon transferred onto the back of your paper.

Spirit Transfer Paper

SPRAY-STUFF (3oz Spray Can)

Spray Stuff is used after the stencil has already been placed onto the skin. A light spray on the stencil will create a barrier to help your stencils last longer.

TIP: It is important to let the Stencils dry for about 15 minutes. This will help keep your stencil lasting longer.

Dettol

DETTOL-S (8.45oz) $7
DETTOL-L (16.9oz) $13

Speed Stick $3

TA-DEO (0.5oz stick)

TIP: When the stencil has been applied onto the skin, make sure to start tattooing from the bottom, and work your way up. That way you wont wipe off your stencils.
